

The City of Albuquerque's
Pollution Prevention Program

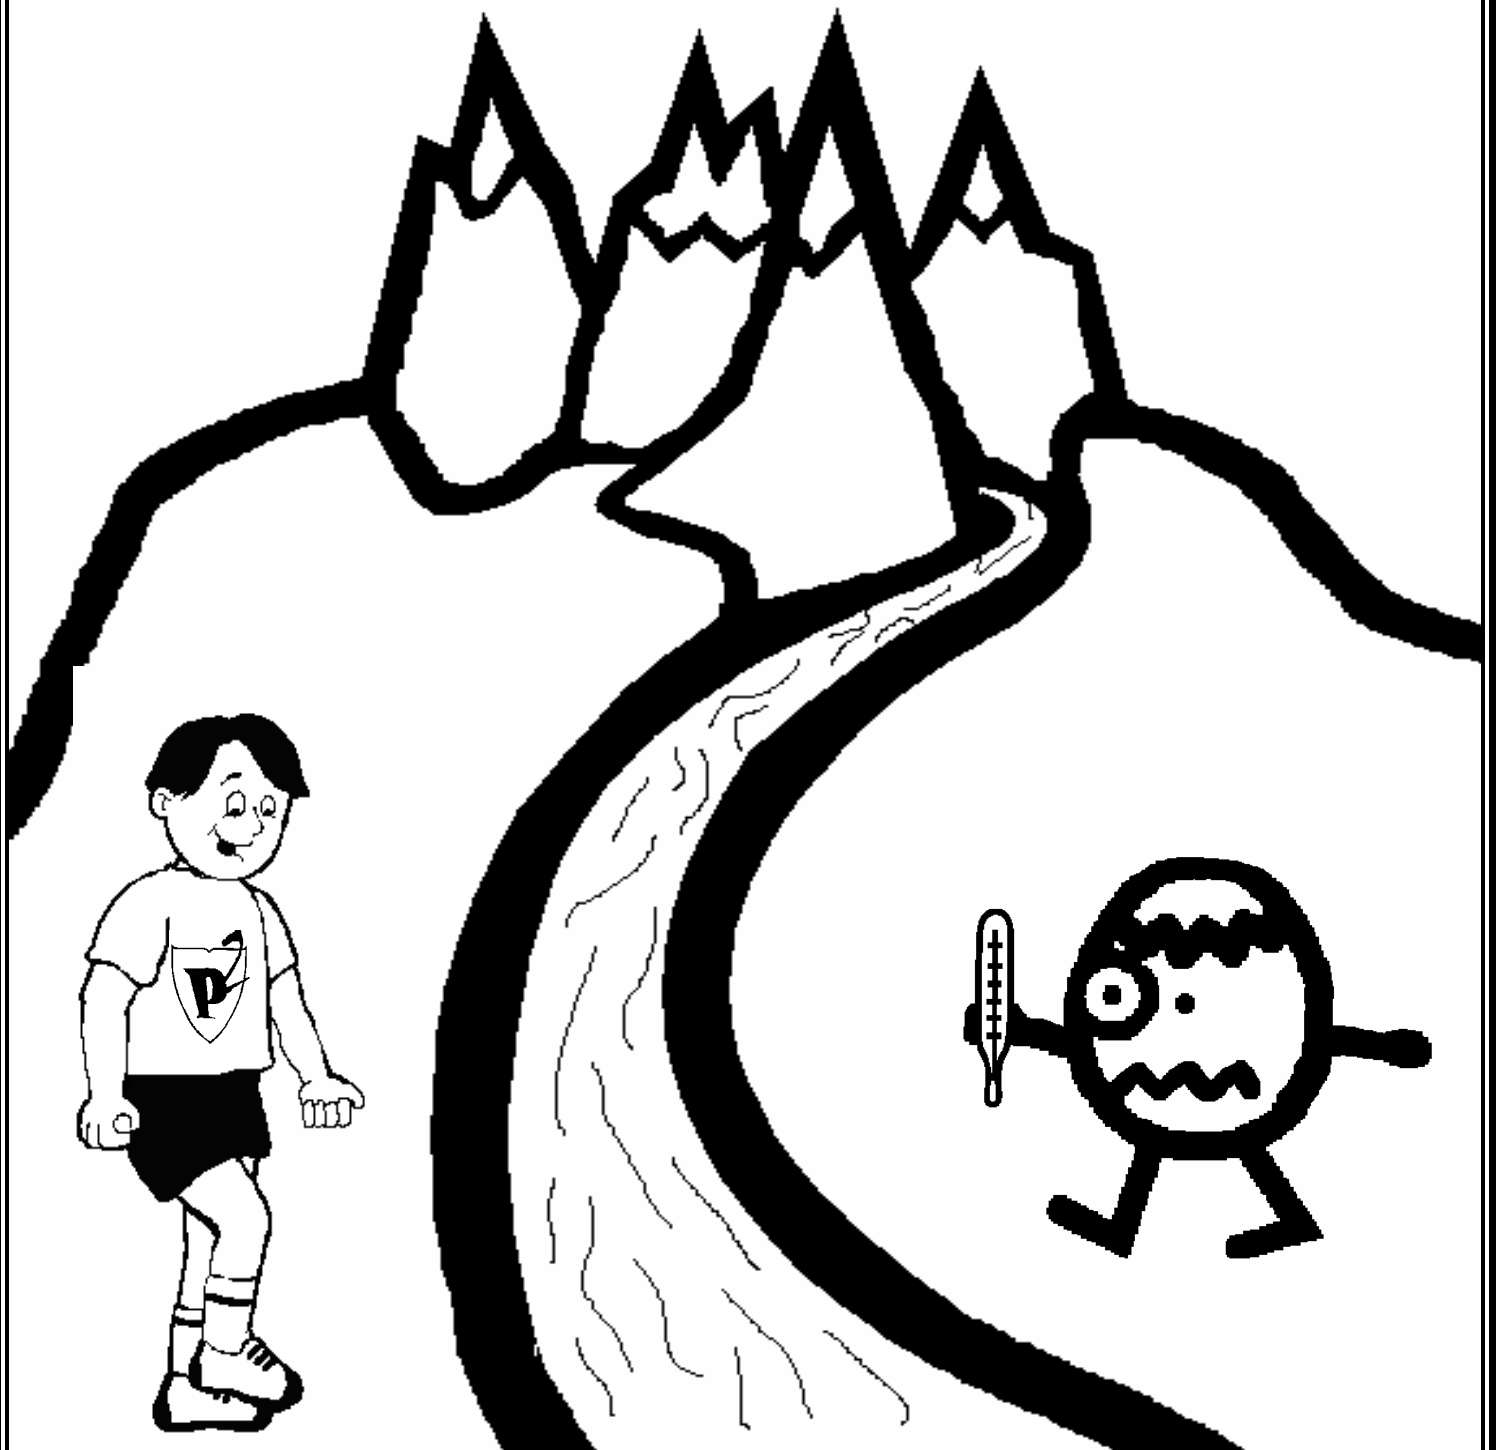

presents

Pollution Prevention Avengers

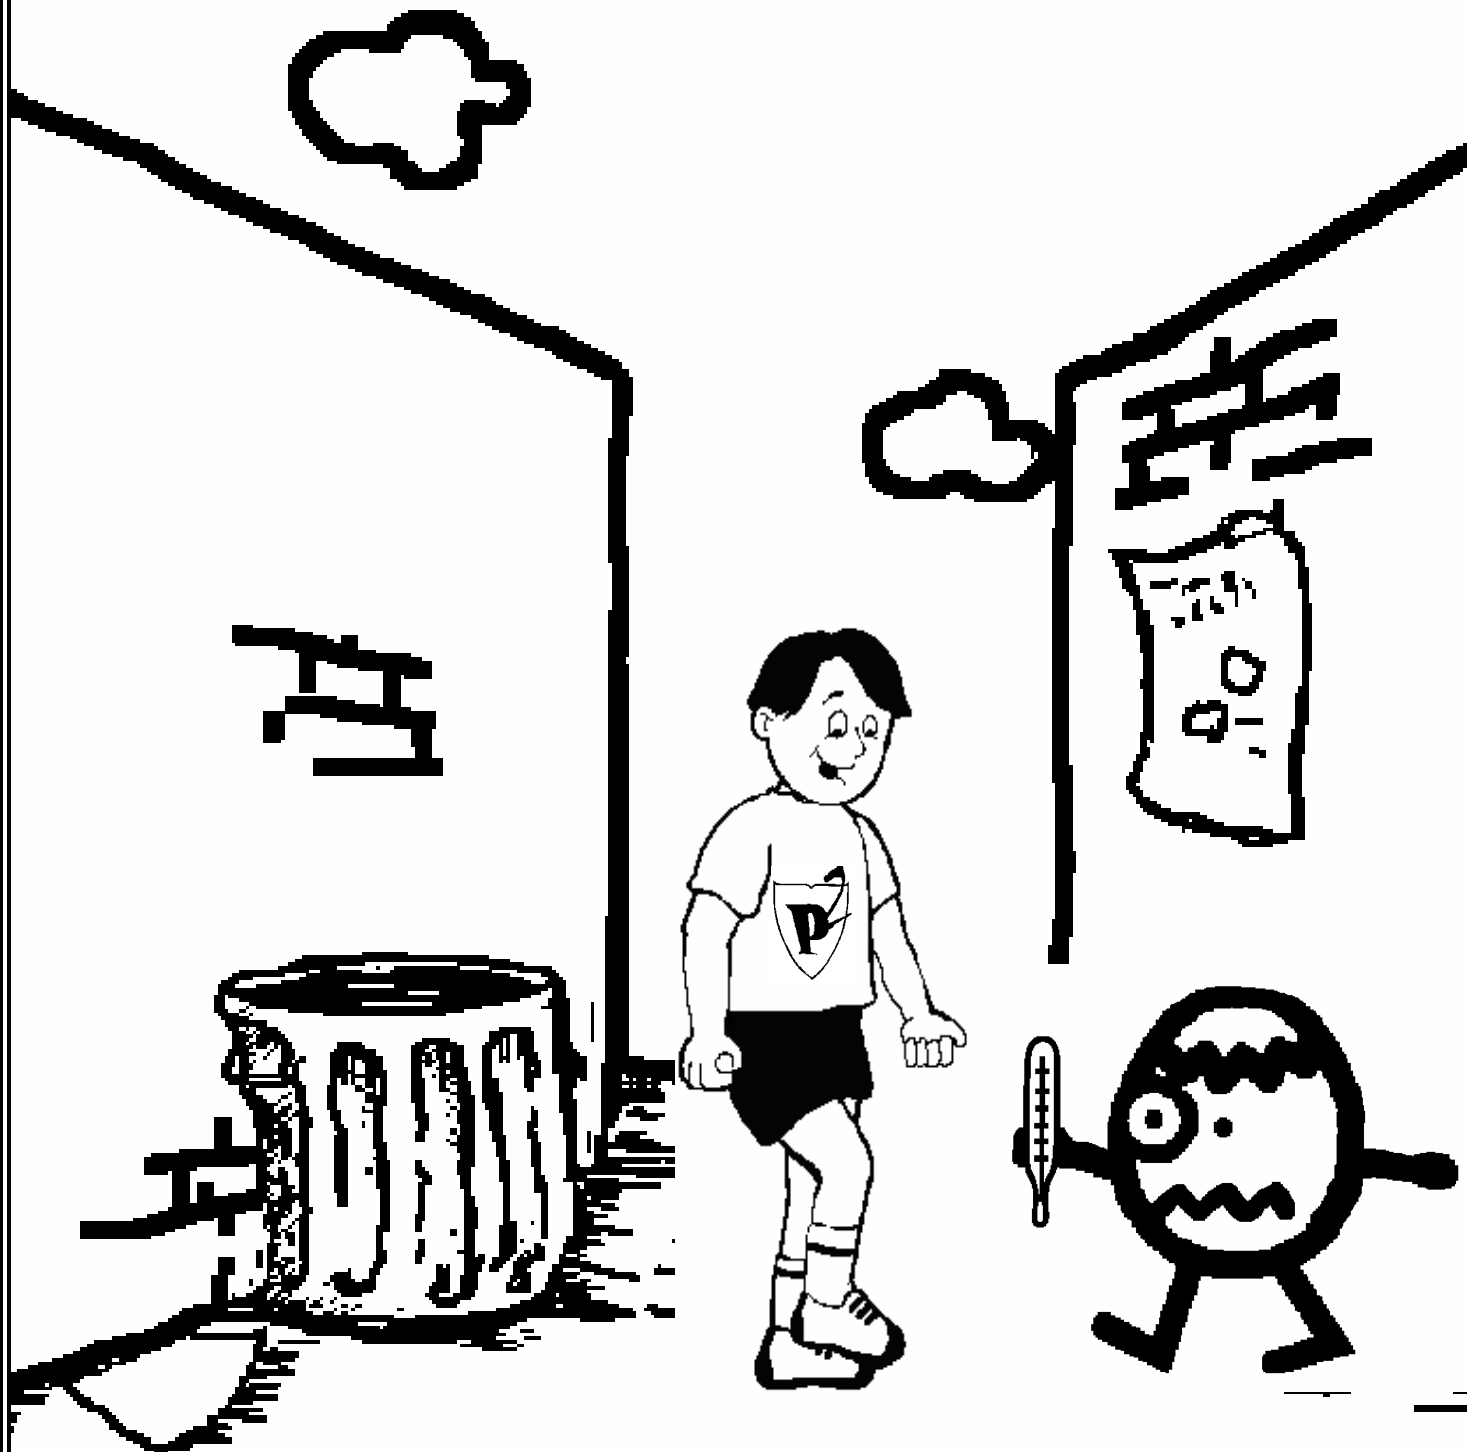

Vs.
Mr. Glumly

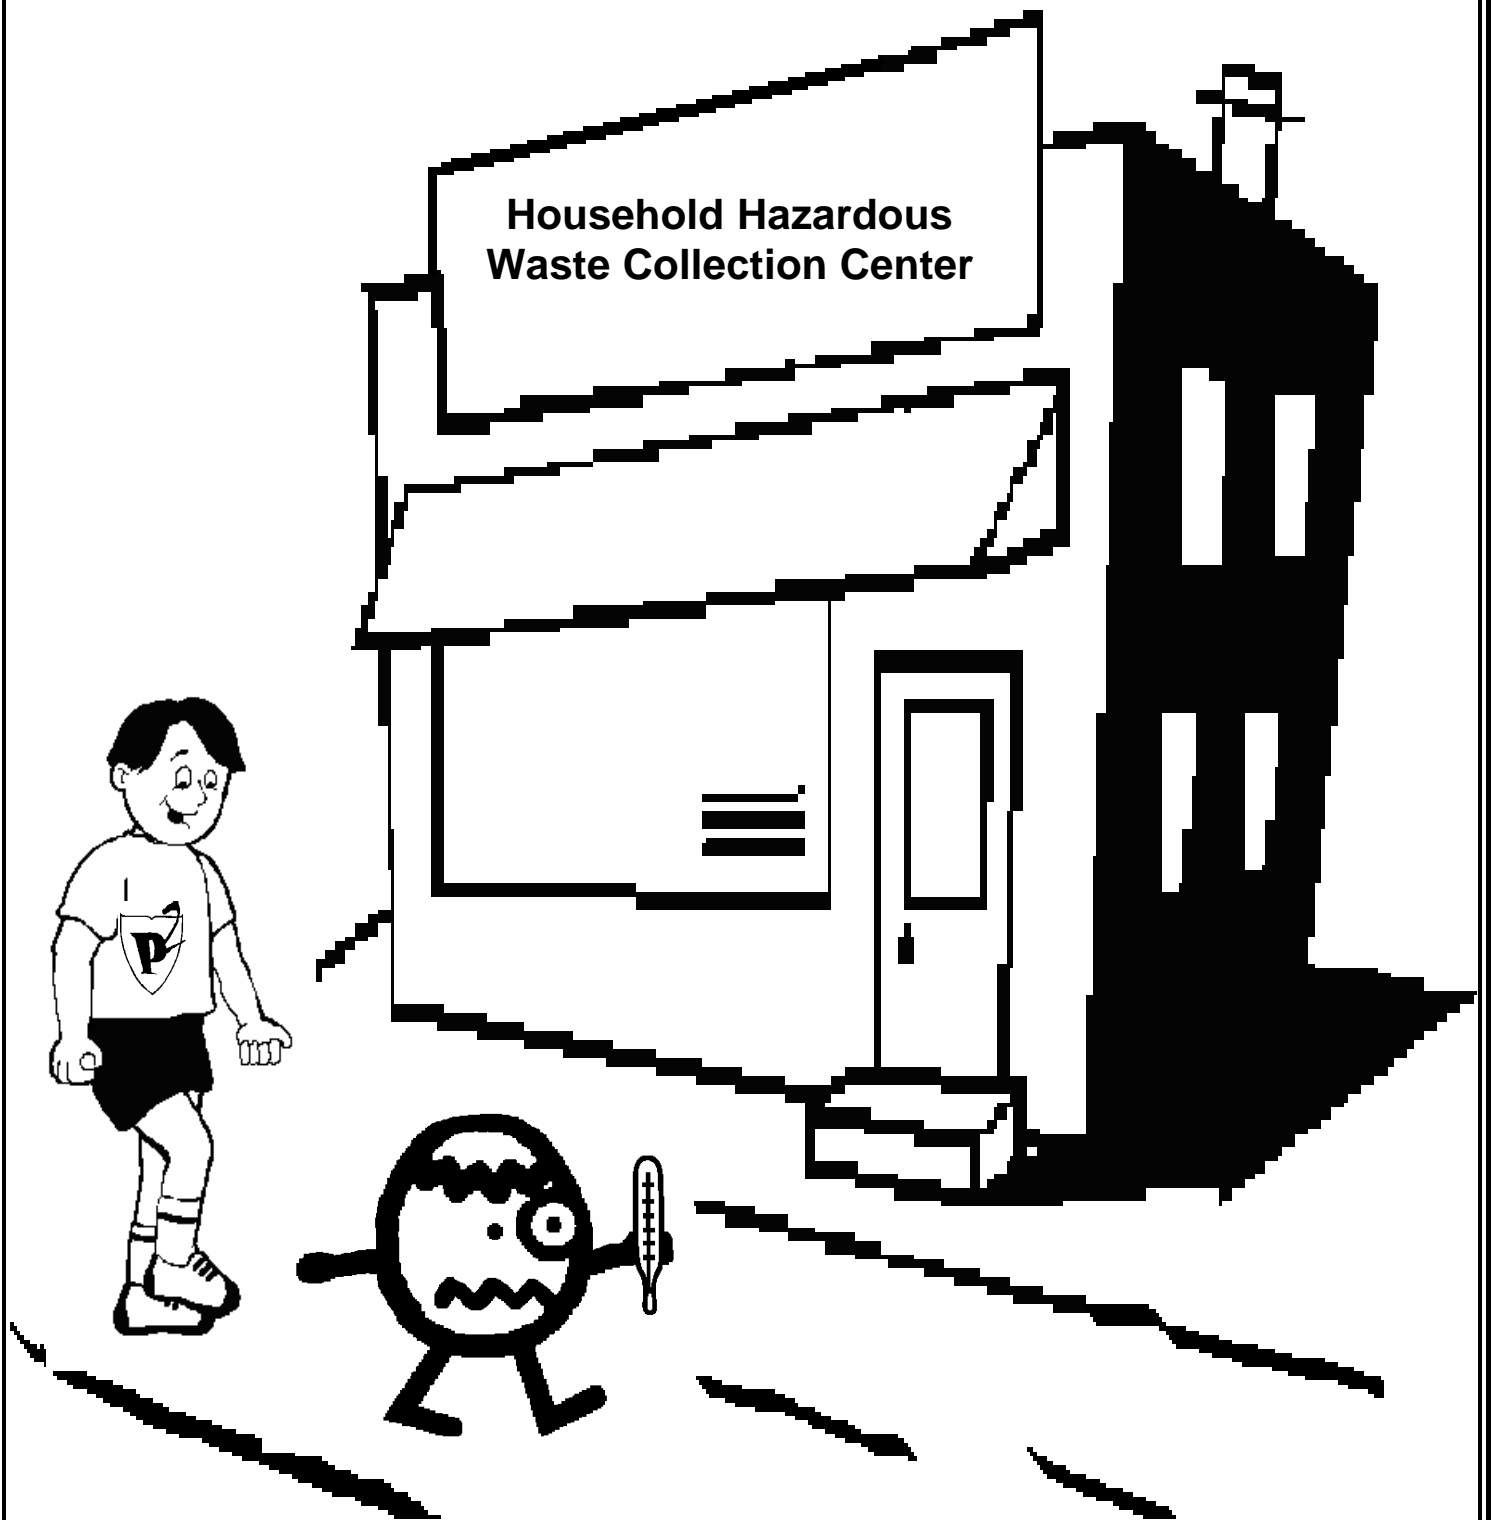

Once upon a time in Albuquerque, a p2 Avenger was walking along the Rio Grande River. After a while he ran into Mr. Glumly, who was just about to throw a mercury thermometer into the river. The p2 Avenger told Mr. Glumly that a mercury thermometer will pollute the Rio Grande and could hurt the fish and people. So, Mr. Glumly did not throw it into the river.

Later on that day, the p2 Avenger saw Mr. Glumly again. This time he was going to throw the mercury thermometer into a trash can. Again, the p2 Avenger told Mr. Glumly that the thermometer could hurt people. Even though he was upset, Mr. Glumly decided not to throw the mercury thermometer in the trash.

The p2 Avenger stopped Mr. Glumly from throwing the mercury thermometer in the river and the trash. The p2 Avenger finally took him to the Household Hazardous Waste Collection Center (HHWCC) to dispose of the thermometer. Now the mercury will not hurt anybody.

Remember kids, everybody can be a p2 Avenger. We don't want the river to be polluted or fish and people to get hurt. All you have to do is remember to take any thermometer with mercury to the HHWCC. The number for the HHWCC is 345-1650. If you or your parents have any questions please call the Program at 873-7058 or 873-7059. Let's all try to keep our environment safe and clean.

